FIND CREEK WATERS CHOKE SEWER LINES

City Workers Discover Manhole In Touby's Run Dumps Storm Water In Sanitary System.

HELPS SOLVE PROBLEM

Mayor Says Difficulties at Disposal Plant Will Be Partially Cleared.

Discovery of a partially-submerged manhole in Touby's Run near the Ohio Brass company threw a new light on Mansfield's sewage disposal plant problem today.

Mayor William J. Locke blamed the water thrown into the sanitary sewer system by the manhole during high water periods for disrupting in a large measure, the operation of the disposal plant. Excessive water in the sanitary system, according to various engineers, flooded the disposal tanks preventing equipment to act upon the sewage.

The manhole was discovered yesterday by S. E. LeMunyon, sewer superintendent, when his workers were cleaning sewers in that vicinity. Locke said that no record of the manhole's construction could be found.

According to the mayor, the manhole has been by-passing water from Rocky Fork creek into the sanitary sewer system during every storm. Although the mayor would make no estimate of the amount of water diverted into the sewer system by the manhole, he said that it was more than ordinarily entered the regular sewer system during a storm.

Chief criticism of the city's sewage disposal plant has been the excessive roof drainage water running into the sanitary sewer system. Various engineers have advocated drastic changes in the disposal plant.

Mayor Locke said he believed that after the manhole had been built up well above the waterline or eliminated and the city's sewer cleaning program had been completed, that the disposal plant would function properly without any radical change in equipment.

Records in City Engineer W. C. Statler's office show that the sewer system was built in 1912 and 1913. No original record of the manhole in the middle of the creek was made, however. A sym-

ATTACK CONVOY

British Planes Damage Four Ships In North Sea.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Royal air force planes attacked two enemy convoys and escorting war vessels in the North Sea yesterday and damaged four merchant ships so seriously that their loss is certain, the air ministry said today.

Indicating the magnitude of the North Sea operations, the air ministry said eight British planes were lost.

(In Berlin the Official News Agency said British planes yesterday attempted to attack German light naval forces in the North Sea. The agency said the German vessels avoided the bombs and shot down three planes.) The air ministry said one British attack occurred near Helgoland. The other occurred off the Norwegian coast.

INTERVENTION BY FDR SEEN

Soft Coal Negotiations Are Deadlocked Over Place For Meeting.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of Labor Perkins asked northern coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America today to agree to "immediate resumption" of mining operations to "insure an adequate coal supply for defense and other industries."

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Possibility that President Roosevelt may be forced to intervene in the soft coal deadlock loomed today.

An impasse has developed between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, (CIO), and the southern coal operators over the question of whether they should meet in New York or Washington to resume wage negotiations broken off eight days ago when the southern mine owners bolted the joint Appalachian conference.

Lewis says, "let's meet in New York;" the southern mine owners say, "let's meet in Washington."

The nation's bituminous mines, meanwhile, are shut down and 400,000 workers have been idle since April 1—a situation of far-reaching importance to the national defense program.

While this haggling goes on, coal stocks are running low and the "pinch" is beginning to be felt. The Boston and Maine and Maine Central railroads have reported that the fuel situation on both roads was becoming critical and unless the bituminous miners return to work within a week a curtailment of of operations may be necessary.

Lewis has made a "tentative" agreement with the northern coal producers but he refuses to execute it until the southerners come into the fold and cooperate in negotiating a contract that would cover the entire Appalachian area.

OIL PLANT HIT

Norwegians Report Destruction of Factory in Raid.

LONDON —(AP)— The Norwegian government-in-exile said today one of the largest herring oil factories in German-occupied northern Norway was destroyed by explosives in a raid on Oeksfjord April 12 by a Norwegian raiding party which landed unopposed.

The raiders manning a former United States destroyer started from a base in England.

CHURCH DESTROYED.

LONDON —(AP)— St. Andrews, the largest church designed by Sir Christopher Wren was destroyed in recent air raids on London. Charles Dickens called many of the names used in his novels from the church register.

CONTENDS SHE DIED IN FALL AFTER SCUFFLE

Father Identifies Remains Through Dental Work Found In Ashes.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON—Police said today the 58-year-old janitor of North Hill Methodist church had confessed incinerating the body of Ruth Zwicker, 24-year-old music teacher, but contended she died accidentally in a scuffle after he sought a kiss.

Detective Inspector Verne Cross attributed the confession to Albert B Lukens, father of three grown children. Cross said Lukens signed a statement relating:

"I asked her for a kiss and she struck my face. I grabbed her right arm and in the scuffle she fell, striking her head against the piano bench.

"Then I dragged her down the steps and into the coal bin. About 6 o'clock Easter morning I returned to the church and built a fire in the boilers. I threw her and the music sheets into the boiler."

Miss Zwicker had been missing since she went to the church last Saturday morning to practice piano. Detectives, acting on a hunch, sifted ashes under the boiler grates and found the remains. The young woman's father identified the remains through dental work.

Inspector Cross and Prosecutor Alva Russell expressed belief that Lukens had not told "the whole story." Russell said he would bring a murder charge against the janitor, held tentatively as a suspicious person.

Cross quoted the janitor as saying he burned the body for fear he would be incriminated in the death.

The young woman's father, A. W. Zwicker, told detectives that the man twice had helped him search last Saturday night through the many rooms of the church.

The father had found the young woman's car near the church, and feared for his daughter's safety. The young woman had been sought since Easter as a possible amnesia victim.

GET $200 LOOT

Burglars Rifle Cash Register At Hardware Supply.

In an early morning burglary, thieves took more than $200 in cash from the Mansfield Hardware and Supply company store, 70 North Foster street, today after prying open a cash register.

David La Pine, manager, reported to police that entry was made by breaking a window pane in the rear of the building and unlocked a window.

Police said they found several sets of fingerprints in the store and are checking them in their investigation of the case. La Pine told them that the robbery must have occurred between 11 p. m. yesterday when the store was closed and 1 a. m. today. A checkup revealed that nothing but the cash was taken.

What German Bombs Did To Famous St. Paul's

This cablephoto flashed from England shows the damage created in London's historic St. Paul's cathedral when a German aerial bomb smashed through the dome roof and exploded in the north transept, the decorative marble and stonework were demolished in the inner portico. The bomb's concussion destroyed most of the stained windows in the famed cathedral.

Tech Shows Power In Relays Preliminaries

Cleveland Defending Champion 'Team to Beat', Other Contestants Find; 1,300 Athletes Here For Annual Carnival

By REX V. HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

STADIUM FIELD—Under brighter and balmier skies than have blessed the event for many years, the 15th annual Mansfield Relays got under way this morning.

As the race track boys would report, it was "weather clear, track fast." Well, pretty fast, anyhow. Yesterday's rain didn't help any, but the track was at least dry, and you certainly couldn't say it was slow.

You could say it was crowded though, and that it was. What track wouldn't be, with 1,300 athletes milling around.

The fact that there were so many athletes—a hundred more than Director Harry Mehock estimated yesterday, when he figured 98 schools would turn up 1,200 contestants—slowed up the elimination events this morning.

But with his seasoned and veteran crew of officials, Mehock was in a fair way to have the decks cleared for the start of the finals at 2 p. m. today—the really serious competition.

For once, the experts were right, too, or seemed to be.

East Tech of Cleveland, the defending champion, and back again with most of last year's squad intact, began to show an early foot, to live up to the name of the "team to beat" which the observers had hung on it.

Tech qualified two men for the 120-yard high hurdles. They were Dillard and Jackson. Dillard broke the tape in the first (preliminary) heat of this event in 15.2, which was just a fifth of a second off the meet record, hung up last year by another East Techer, Harold Lane. Dillard, by the way, ran second to Lane in that record-smashing performance.

In the semi-finals, Dillard slowed up to 15.6, but if he's pushed, as he probably will be this afternoon, he can sweep him.

CAPTURE 28

Canadians Seize Number of Escaped Nazi Prisoners.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. —(AP)— The capture of "several" of 28 German prisoners of war who escaped last night between 8 p. m. and 1 a. m. through a tunnel from an internment camp was announced today by Canadian authorities.

Authoritative sources said it was believed that Adolf Hitler's 52nd birthday tomorrow may have had something to do with the escape. Officials had laid plans for an especially careful watch over Canada's prison camps tomorrow.

The escape brought to 61 the number of prisoners who have made a break for liberty from Canadian camps.

CIRCLEVILLE —(AP)— A common pleas jury convicted Andrew Mack Wright of Dayton of manslaughter yesterday in the traffic death of Miss Catherine Stapleton of Circleville.

JAMESON ASKS SENATE INQUIRY

Demands Investigation After He Charges Errors Exist In Chamber's Journal.

State Senator Joseph Jameson of Lorain, who frequently makes himself heard in the Ohio senate chamber, today demanded an investigation of alleged errors in the senate's journal. It was the first time in a number of years that such a request has been made.

Jameson, who represents Richland and other Northcentral Ohio counties in the state senate, asserted that a report of the health committee, as published in the journal, differed from original, an Associated Press dispatch said.

A controversy on the senate floor two days ago over the alleged errors resulted in the presiding officer asking the sergeant-at-arms to quiet Jameson who had declined to yield the floor to Senator W. J. Zoul of Cleveland, the press dispatch said.

Jameson asked today that a committee of three senators be named to "determine why such errors were made" and report its finding by next Wednesday.

The dispute involved Jameson's 44-page bill to regulate the installation of plumbing and sewers. He said the committee report contained a clause prohibiting

Expect Whole Car Industry To Drop New '43 Models

DETROIT—(AP)—General Motors' announcement that it is making no plans for new model passenger cars in 1943 is expected in automobile circles here to be followed shortly by similar decision by the remainder of the motorcar industry.

In announcing his company's decision yesterday in New York, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., General Motors board chairman, said the action had been determined upon so that all possible acceleration might be given to the national defense program.

All other companies manufacturing motor vehicles have pledged their fullest effort to the defense materials production program and a decision to forego 1943 model changes has been regarded among authoritative observers in the industry as an "obvious eventuality."

While the Ford Motor company and Chrysler Corporation, which with General Motors produce about 85 per cent of all the nation's automobiles, have made no

PRAY, PICK HIS POCKETS

London Warns Of Defeat In Greek Battle

Allies Withdraw to New Defense Line As Nazis Capture Important Rail Center at Larisa; New Fight For Suez Control Looms

(By United Press)

Germany's blitz army in the Balkans—directed by Adolf Hitler on the eve of his 52nd birthday anniversary—reported today that it had broken through the Allied defense line on Mount Olympus and the London press warned Britons of possible defeat in the battle of Greece.

At Cairo, the British general headquarters said that Allied forces which on Friday withdrew to a new and shorter defense line in Greece had repulsed new and heavy German armored attacks along the entire front, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy and taking many prisoners. (The new line apparently was below Mount Olympus and Larisa.)

Pressing forward despite tremendous losses, the Nazi blitzmen planted the swastika on the peak of fabled Mount Olympus and captured the important Greek railroad center of Larisa, about 140 miles north of Athens, according to the Berlin high command.

At the same time, the Nazis reported, other German forces pressed against the center of the line in a drive on Kalabaka and advanced through the Pindus mountains on the western end of the Greek battle line. Axis air fleets, paced by dive bombers, hammered at rear lines and attacked shipping in Greek waters, sinking some 40,000 tons including a British auxiliary cruiser in Mediterranean waters, Berlin asserted.

The British and Greeks fighting for every ridge as they fell back to a shorter line, presumably withdrew from Mount Olympus on Friday as the German mechanized armies advanced over mountain roads strewn with dead.

The exact points at which the Allied forces took up a "new and shorter" defense line to present what Athens termed a solid wall against the enemy were not specified but according to the Berlin dispatches must have been somewhere below Larisa.

The Miltaos-Karditz railroad line, south of Larisa and about 120 miles from Athens, might offer a defense line but it is on level country better suited to Nazi motorized units and previous reports had suggested that any new line would be stretched across the narraw mountain area from Arta, on the Ionian sea, to the Lamia sector, on the Aegean, with the historic battle field of Thermopylae on the eastern flank.

Although British forces continued to fight strongly beside their Greek allies, the London press—obviously under official guidance—began warning the people of the possibility of a defeat in Greece and a withdrawal to North Africa in preparation for a great battle for the Suez canal and the oil wells of the Near East.

Nazi spokesmen in Berlin already had declared that there would be "no intermission" in the war for control of the Mediterranean. Spain's Falangist newspapers again began hinting that the country was likely to join the Axis and at Istanbul it was reported that Nazi agents were busy preparing the way for German expansion eastward, especially in the Iraq oil fields.

The United States consular officials warned Americans in Turkey that it was advisable not to travel by way of Iraq and Franz von Papen, Nazi ambassador at Ankara, flew to Berlin

'BATTLE YEAR': Hitler Says Nazis Must Make Sacrifices

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Adolf Hitler, on the eve of his 52nd birthday, told the German people in a message from his field headquarters "somewhere in southeastern Europe" today that they face a hard "battle year" and that those at home, equally with the men at the front, must be prepared for sacrifices.

Hitler said his troops were "the best soldiers in the world" in calling upon the people to make generous contributions to the care of the wounded.

The disclosure that Hitler himself was with the Balkan armies, directing the attack on the British-Greek line as supreme commander, was made by Otto Dietrich, Nazi press chief, in a special article in German papers today.

In his message to the people, Hitler appealed for contributions to the German Red Cross.

"A hard battle year stands before us," he said. "It will enter into history as a great and memorable event in the greatest battle the German people have ever fought for their political freedom, and with that for their economic future."

It happened that the statement coincided with the imposition of new restrictions on the amounts of beer, liquor and tobacco available to the public. A new 20 per cent reduction in the beer supply, which makes a total of 40 per cent as compared to the pre-war supply, caused many taverns to discontinue the sale of beer for off-the-premises consumption and to close one day a week.

Bottled liquor is now almost unobtainable and tavern keepers will sell only a specific number of glasses to each patron and only at certain hours of the day.

BROKEN: Assault By Italian, Nazi Forces Fails At Tobruk

By J. H. VINDRICH

(Copyright 1941 by United Press)

WITH THE BRITISH EMPIRE GARRISON BESIEGED AT TOBRUK, April 16—(Via Cairo and London: Delayed)—A new attack by German and Italian mechanized forces on this desert outpost of the Army of the Nile has broken against the stone wall defense of intrepid pounding Australian infantrymen and British machine gunners and artillerymen.

About 200 Italian infantrymen with a stiffening of Germans, broke through the outer perimeter of the semi-circular defenses of Tobruk at the peak of the attack. About 200 were killed. Thirty were captured. Seventy got away.

For six days the Germans and Italians had been making repeated attacks from the southern sector, west of the El Adem road. Yesterday they attacked from the west, between the Tobruk-Derna road and the sea.

The day before they had been seen taking positions on top of the escarpment that dominates the terrain between the Tobruk-Derna road and the seashore.

The artillery opened on them at once. For several hours the British gunners smashed at every concentration of troops and tanks they could spot.

The gun fire ceased. A patrol of infantry from South Australia went out to see what trouble they could find.

They brought back 70 Italians even before the attack started.

"The artillery fire had broken their morale," a staff captain told me. "Several of them came in weeping and expressed their pleasure at being captured."

Then came the attack, and its repulse.

Marshal Keeps France Out of War

Decree Government Gives Nation Hectic and Unstable Rule.

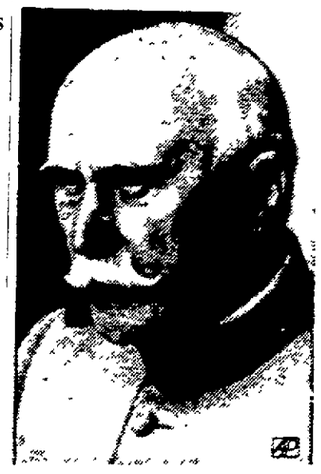
EDITOR'S NOTE—Kenneth Downs, noted foreign correspondent for International News Service, herewith presents, in the fourth of a series of articles, a first-hand account of the stewardship of occupied France, under Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, and describes his advisers.

By KENNETH DOWNS

(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—Old Marshal Petain is undoubtedly one of the most remarkable men of these times. At 84 he is trying to perform a job that would tax the capacities of any mental and physical hercules in his prime.

He has no illusions. He knows the German avalanche can slide down on him at any time and that there is not a thing in the world that he can do to hold it off. But he is clinging to the position he took when he signed the Armistice. The avalanche can sweep him away but he won't be budged by mere threats of being swept away. France is out of the war, she will stay out as long as he is ruler.



MARSHAL PETAIN

German Avalanche Hangs Over Him But He Stands Firm.

It took no little courage to break German-backed Pierre Laval when the latter was obviously trying to lead France back into the war against her former ally, England.

One of the leading foreign envoys attached to Vichy told me: "there is in Vichy only one completely patriotic Frenchman, who puts the interests of his country before all else, as far as I have been able to find. That is the marshal."

That is the general opinion of outside observers in Vichy. There are other decent patriotic Frenchmen in the capital, but they are

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Gracie Fields, in case nobody ever told her, ought to be in pictures.

Gracie is that fabulous Lancashire Lass who stopped making fortunes for herself when the war began and is now well on the way to her first million for British war relief. She's been touring this country and Canada, singing and clowning to drag in the dollars, and the way she throws herself into the job ought to cheer the folks back home.

ROBBIN COONS

Gracie never made a movie here, but she should, and when she does they ought to let her be herself—because there's nobody else like her. If they can't make her fit into any of the accepted patterns of the screen, that's to the good. Just put her in front of a camera and let 'er go, we say, and she'll do all right. She's done all right in the English movies already, and she'll do better in a Hollywood movie if they give her the reins.

THE reason for this effusion is that Gracie, as part of her tour, has hit Los Angeles and given her first show before a local audience. "I'd never have dared it," she said, "but the cause made me screw up my courage."

Her showcase here was the Shrine auditorium, a vast stage and a vast expanse of seating capacity—nothing cozy and intimate to help a girl along. Gracie, 43 now, might have been feazed by that once, but you can doubt it. She's playing the biggest halls everywhere, with about the same victorious results.

GRACIE comes on stage, a rather big blonde girl, and gets cheerily down to business. She gives ballads, which are all right though she's not the greatest torch singer in town, and she gives comedy turns, which are inimitable. Whether she's rasping out an eulogy of the "biggest aspidistra in the town" or burlesquing a parlor coloratura, or besieging "Walter, Walter" to take her to the altar, she's a first-rate trouper.

SENATORS WORK ON ALTERNATIVE CONVOY SYSTEM

Would Withhold Action Until Congress Grants Approval If Other Bill Fails.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Some senate opponents of administration foreign policy, conceding that they might fail to enact a strict prohibition against convoys, worked out an alternative restriction today under which convoys could be ordered only with approval of congress.

A resolution forbidding convoys is scheduled for action by the senate foreign relations committee April 30, and administration leaders say they have ample strength to shelve the measure.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) author of the proposal, told the senate yesterday he had information from four unnamed persons that American naval vessels already were engaged in convoy work. Democratic leader Barkley (Ky.) replied he had "unequivocal and emphatic" assurances from Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, that convoys had not been used and that no orders for them had been issued.

Senator Nye (R., N. D.) was expected to introduce a new resolution requiring congressional approval before convoys could be ordered, and to suggest that it be considered as a compromise if the foreign relations committee shelves the Tobey resolution.

"If the administration is sincere in not wishing to endanger American lives by using convoys," Nye declared, "there certainly should be no objection to permitting congress to act before convoys are ordered."

Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.) who sought unsuccessfully to write an anti-convoy amendment into the lease-lend bill, said he believed further discussion of convoy restrictions would only "give joy and pleasure to Hitler."

In another field of foreign policy, Nye criticized the administration for its pledges of assistance to Yugoslavia.

"One day," he said, "this country will be held up in the light of having encouraged these little countries to stand up one after another and commit suicide by promising help that we couldn't possibly furnish.

"These empty promises have definitely weakened our prestige throughout the world."

PASSES BILL

House OK's Milk Bill; Has Little Effect on County.

Despite opposition from representatives from several of the state's larger cities, a bill which would place Ohio milk dealers under rigid state control had been passed today by the house of representatives by a vote of 74 to 20.

The measure would require all milk dealers to be licensed by the department of agriculture and to produce evidence of financial responsibility before they could do business.

Sponsors of the bill said it would protect farmers from "fly-by-night" dealers who buy their milk and cream for 30 or 90 days on credit and then go out of business without paying for it.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said the bill, if it becomes law, would have little effect on dealers in the Mansfield area since this community is small enough so that dealers can be checked easily.

NAME ELEVEN IN MINE MURDERS

Authorities Arrest Nine UMW Members, Two Officials In Mine Slayings.

(By International News Service)

MIDDLESBORO, Ky.—Two officials of the CIO's United Mine Workers' union and nine CIO members, all of them wounded, today were charged with murder in connection with a gun battle in which four men were killed near the Fork Ridge coal mine last Tuesday.

The officials, A. T. Pace, a former mayor at Herrin, Ill., and now a traveling auditor for the union, and James W. Ridings, a former sheriff of Bell county, Kentucky, and now an international UMW representative, were arrested in Middlesboro last night.

Pace and Ridings were released on $5,000 bonds, and are expected to face trial at Tazewell, Tenn. A joint Tennessee-Kentucky commission of engineers determined late yesterday that the slayings took place 200 feet inside the Tennessee border, a point previously in dispute.

The other nine named in murder warrants all are in Middlesboro hospital suffering from gunshot wounds received in the battle. They are R. W. Lawson, a Bell county deputy sheriff; Alfred Smith, Walteh Polly, Earl Alley, Clayton Webb, John Holland, Miller Forester, Tom Napier and Ed Smith.

The gun battle occurred during an attempt by union miners to close the Fork Ridge mine, which remained open although most mines in the area were strike closed.

Approximately 200 union pickets participated in the gun battle.

BOARD ACTS

Splits Washington Township Into 2 Voting Precincts.

The Richland county election board late yesterday divided Washington township into two voting precincts instead of one and took steps to add at least four additional precincts in Madison township.

The board's action in Washington township followed a meeting at the courthouse with trustees from the two townships.

Clerk Philip Wolfe o tfhe election board said the dividing line in Washington township will follow old route 13. Precinct A will be east of the line and Precinct B west of it.

Electors in the A precinct will vote on the first floor of the township house, while those in precinct B will cast their ballots on the second floor of the building.

Madison township trustees asked for more time to study the proposed re-districting plan in Madison township and agreed to meet with the election board at its next session on May 16.

Up and Down THE STREET

Bob Gresmer Thursday decided to get the jump on other mushroom hunters. He and three companions roamed over hill and dale seeking the elusive fungus umbrellas for more than five hours. Each was rewarded with one apiece. Each discovery was followed by a hectic dragnet based on the ill-founded belief that they had at last found a mushroom bed. Anyway, said Bob, it was a lot of fun.

Richland county's three selective service boards get a lot of problems to solve, but they had one today that required the services of a mystic. The boards were passing around a postcard from an unidentified registrant who reported a change of address without mentioning his name or order number. There was no board number on the card, either, so the board clerks weren't sure which area it was intended for. The forgetful registrant merely said: "This is to inform you that my new address is ....." He listed a number and that was all.

In his scramble to break free, the motorist dragged the parked car nearly a half block backwards before police arrived. He was fined in municipal court this morning on an intoxication charge.

CONSIDERED LOGICAL STEP FOR REVENUE

Levy on Transportation Held Probable as Successful Money-Raiser.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Revival of a long list of World war excise taxes, such as those on railroad tickets and life insurance policies, was described in congressional circles today as a logical step toward the proposed goal of $3,500,000,000 in additional revenues.

Some members of the house ways and means committee went so far as to say renewal of such levies was "a foregone conclusion." Those legislators explained that the additional excise taxes would be necessary to make up whatever amounts the prospective increases in income and corporation taxes fail to produce.

Well-informed members said that in addition to producing new revenue, needed to finance the defense program, the administration looked to higher taxes for a psychological result—impression on the general public of the gravity of the current situation.

Among the biggest money-raisers in the excise tax group 20 years ago was the levy on the transportation of freight by rail or water which, in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, produced $140,019,200. The preceding year, the tax on passenger travel by rail or water produced $98,786,635. Both levies were discontinued in 1922.

Other excise taxes imposed during or immediately after the World war included levies on lighting fixtures, medicinal preparations, soft drinks, motion picture film, sporting goods, cameras and lenses, chewing gum, firearms, and electric fans.

In the year ending June 30, 1920, the tax on candy brought in $23,142,033 but the yield dropped to less than half that sum in 1924, the last year it was collected.

The ways and means committee is to meet Monday in closed session with treasury officials to go over the situation and Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) said the group probably would decide then when to begin public hearings on the matter. Doughton expressed belief it would require at least two months to get the tax bill through congress.

Although President Roosevelt indicated he did not favor imposition of a general manufacturers' sales tax to raise the money, some sentiment for such an impost developed within the committee.

Opponents of the sales tax contended that it would place an unfair share of the burden on the little fellow who is least able to pay.

5,000 Wait Near Church As Film Songstress Weds

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Deanna Durbin, the pretty 19-year-old screen actress with the golden voice, was on her honeymoon today.

While 5,000 eager spectators jammed Wilshire boulevard outside, Deanna last night became the bride of Vaughn Paul, youthful film executive, who was assistant director on Deanna's first picture five years ago.

Their formal wedding in the Wilshire Methodist Episcopal church gave Hollywood its first big marriage spectacle in several years.

She was in traditional white, and she carried an old-fashioned bridal bouquet of white gardenias, lillies of the valley and orchids.

Their wedding trip will take a month, and on their return to Hollywood they will take an apartment until their one-story English cottage in Brentwood is completed.

MARSHAL PETAIN KEEPS NATION OUT OF STRUGGLE

German Avalanche Hangs Over Him But He Holds To Main Purpose.

rare exceptions in the hosts of self-seeking, futile politicians who overflow the town. Were it not for the marshal, the tragi-comedy would be at once too tragic and too comic for words.

The marshal's closest advisers are not professional politicians. They are Dr. Bernard Menetrel, bright-eyed, 34-year-old old physician, who is constantly at his side and who sleeps in a room adjoining the marshal's at the Hotel du Parc; Dumoulin de la Barthete, a highly cultured man who was attached to the French embassy in Madrid when the marshal was ambassador there: and General Laure, who served under the marshal in the World war and commanded the eighth army in the last war.

Menetrel, slick, dashing, energetic, handsome, is probably closer to the marshal than anyone. His father was Petain's personal physician and lifelong friend. Young Menetrel succeeded him upon his father's death ten years ago. He is not a politician, but undoubtedly has a good deal to do with short circuiting some who wish to see the marshal and making it easy for others. He is an old-fashioned Frenchman, monarchist, anti-English, anti-German, anti-Jewish, anti-foreign. He had a good deal to do with Laval's ouster.

Dumoulin de la Barthete is neither anti-English nor anti-Semitic. He is in disfavor with the Germans and is expected to follow Peyrouton. Alibert and others to oblivion one of these days. Meantime he heads the marshal's civil aides.

General Laure is secretary-general of the marshal's staff as chief of state. He was captured during the war, released by the Germans upon the personal intervention of Petain.

The marshal is the law in France. He alone can sign a decree. Some of the flood of decrees turned out daily are his own. But most of them, naturally, are drawn up and "sold" to him by various members of the government.

A good part of these decrees are presented to further the personal ambitions of their authors, many of whom strive for new ideas to please the marshal. As a result, red tape is piling up in France as it never has before. One decree follows another. One annuls another. It is all so easy; just the stroke of a pen.

One day Alibert, when he was minister of justice, had a brainwave as he was coming down the elevator of the hotel. A court martial for De Gaullists and Black Bourse operators. That ought to please the old gentleman, who had been a little pettish that day. Alibert dictated the law as he came down the elevator, completing it in the lobby and took it at once for the marshal's signature. It rang the bell. That's how the court martial at Gannat was born.

In a similarly impetuous manner, and in equally fast time, the national assembly was created. The national assembly, which has the ostensible function of meeting from time to time at the marshal's summons, to discuss affairs of state and make recommendations, but without power, has never met. It never will meet, according to insiders.

The war-guilt trials at Riom are slipping steadily out of the picture. Only four of the original defendants remain as prisoners. They are Daladier, Gamelin, Reynaud and Blum. Four chief judges have resigned so far. Insiders think this trial will never come to an end.

Vichy presents an incredibly dreary scene. It is as though everyone realized that nothing much that is done here counts. The constant political intrigues and shakeups have little significance for anyone except those directly involved.

The majority have no deep convictions about the war. They are merely waiting to get on the side of the winner, and they blow hot and cold according to the way they think the war is going. Mostly that is in favor of Germany, because the heavily censored press is careful to give every break to Axis news and play down stories from England and America. President Roosevelt's speeches are always well watered down. The isolationists are played up.

Food is the ever-present problem and nightmare of the Vichy government. Unoccupied France is not self-supporting. She must look to a relaxed blockade for food imports, or the favor of the Germans so that food can be shipped down from the north. There will be a real shortage next winter, despite more severe rationing now in progress.

The Germans continue to take food out of the region in their great lorries that travel by night. I have seen them rumbling along the roads even in the Herault region, which is one of the poorest. They also seize part of the food imports that come into Marseilles.

definite statement yet of their 1943 model plans, their reaction to the Sloan announcement left little doubt of their plans for 1943.

"The entire industry," said a Ford spokesman, "has been of the opinion that there would be no new models for 1943. As far as the Ford Motor company is concerned, the defense program comes first and we have so stated."

Chrysler's attitude was expressed by K. T. Keller, its president.

"We have been so busy with defense work that we have not had a chance to think about 1943 models," he said. "We have not got our 1942 models out yet."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—you can at least do YOUR share in helping to make the highways safer.

Now that we are meeting the bill in billions it may be advisable to start practicing the trill in trillions.

Henry Ford is suffering the penalties of success—no pickets bothered him while he was working in the woodshed on his first automobile.

Traffic Deaths CAN Be Reduced

THE VICTORY DINNER of the National Safety Council in Washington on April 21 will honor four states and seven cities for success in the 1940 national traffic safety contest. They saved the lives of 650 citizens by accident prevention programs.

The states are Connecticut, Oklahoma, Minnesota and Oregon. The cities are Washington; Dallas; Kansas City; Lakewood, O.; Watertown, N. Y.; and La Grange, Ill. The four states had a composite mileage death rate 24 per cent below the national average. The cities cut their death rate 46 per cent below the national average.

If such improvement could be made anywhere, by taking thought and practicing courtesy and caution, it could be made everywhere. The yearly traffic death toll has been a monument to American indifference. Public authorities and private citizens should never be satisfied until this slaughter has been reduced to the lowest possible point.

Iowa Revises Marriage Law

OHIO'S legislators are so proverbially influenced by aggressive minorities that enactment of progressive laws is a slow-paced process in this state.

Iowa, for instance, has now joined the list of states in which marriage licenses are issued only to persons who have undergone tests showing them to be free from syphilis. Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin are mid-west states among the fourteen that already have such statutes.

This requirement has proved its worth in the prevention of insanity, deformity and many other congenital ills. While some states noted a rush for marriage licenses just before the law became effective, it is apparently becoming more generally realized that no more dreadful fate could be imagined than a marriage tainted by a syphilitic condition in either of the contracting parties, with likelihood of the effects of the disease extending to future generations.

The attention of Ohio legislators is commended to the proverb: "Be not the first by whom the new is tried, nor yet the last to lay the old aside."

Relays Become Civic Asset

MANSFIELD today plays host to hundreds of schoolboys from five states as the 15th annual Mansfield Relays are being run at stadium field.

For Mansfield it is the biggest sporting event of the year. For the competing schoolboys it is a chance to win fame and glory for themselves and honor for the 98 schools represented in the meet.

And while the Relays have become one of the most important events in the spring calendar of many of the competing schools, the meet has grown into something more than a sporting event.

It has become a medium by which Mansfield's reputation for hospitality to its guests has been spread far and wide into cities and towns throughout Ohio, and into Michigan, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia as well.

By promoting this sports event Mansfield has also acquired a valuable civic asset.

Dilemma of Japanese In Hawaii

THERE are in Hawaii about 30,000 Americans of Japanese parentage who are greatly troubled about the dual citizenship thrust upon them by the Japanese practice of claiming as nationals all persons of Japanese ancestry wherever they may be. Samuel W. King, delegate from Hawaii in congress at Washington, has recently presented a petition signed by these Japanese Hawaiians asking help in throwing off the unwanted Japanese citizenship.

These matters are too technical for the average person to understand. He is inclined to assume that any citizen of this country can serenely ignore claims made upon him by any foreign government. That is, so long as he doesn't travel in the country making the claim. In that case he might be forcibly held until considerable international red tape had been unwound in his behalf.

Mr. King has suggested that the problem of these American-Japanese might be solved by permitting them to affirm sole allegiance to the United States and to renounce allegiance to Japan before an American court.

Progress On Longest Highway

NEARLY 20 years ago the dream of a great highway from Alaska to Buenos Aires began to take hold as a reality. The many countries concerned started to build their own links in the two-continent route. It is said now that this world's longest road is nearly two-thirds done. Despite many delays and unexpected difficulties, more than 11,000 miles are now in use. With the completion of 5,000 to 6,000 miles more, the 257,000,000 inhabitants of the Americas may travel a route the like of which—in extent and international co-operation—has never been seen before.

The last 5,000 miles may be the hardest. The sections finished first were mostly roads built by pioneers which needed improvement, extension or widening. Much of the remaining job lies along wholly unimproved routes. Some of it must be cut through dense jungle or forests.

The Fourth Pan American Highway Congress will convene at Mexico City in September. It is hoped then that a "time-table" for completion of the final sections may be set up then. If the road is not finished by 1942, it will be in a reasonable time thereafter. Inter-American travel, which is already growing rapidly, will then roll over the highway in great volume, and in both directions.

It is now being recalled that an earlier prophet said the world would end in 1911—with the suggestion that "maybe he was right."

Have you noticed that most prices are either too high or too low, depending on whether you're the buyer or the seller?

A federal debt of $100,000,000,000 is now being rather calmly contemplated by the higher-bracket politicians.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—"It is spy-phobia," says Jim Young, "that is disturbing the Japanese. They think everyone is a spy — often with curious consequences."

Young, a midwesterner, is an American newspaperman who spent 13 years in the Far East, principally in Japan, reporting political, economic, and military developments for American newspapers.

Recently he was told to get out of Japan, but not until he had spent 61 dull and dreary days in a Japanese jail. "They searched my quarters," Young recalls, "and happened to find an old fraternity pin of mine, Phi Gamma Delta. And the next thing I knew I was charged with being a Greek fifth columnist."

IT WAS Oscar Levant, the swart, sometimes exuberant but often sulky musical expert of Information Please who chose "A Smattering of Ignorance" as a title for a book of anecdotes and personal incidents last season—a book that astonished publishers everywhere by its unexpected sale. Now Levant is scheduled for a new book, this one with an altogether appropriate title — "Handbook for Insult."

If you like pirates you will be interested in this news of Kenneth Roberts and Daphne du Maurier. The author of "Arundel," "Oliver Wiswell" and other stories of the American Revolution era, Roberts will move to Africa for the locale of his next novel, not yet titled. Its action will center around Derna, a port recently much in the news, and it will deal with the pirates who demanded tribute from merchantmen until America dispatched Decatur to put an end to that business.

Daphne du Maurier will write on pirates along the Cornish coast in the 18th century. Her new book will be titled "Frenchman's Creek." It will have some of the flavor of "Jamaica Inn," which, with "Rebecca," made her famous. Miss du Maurier in private life is the wife of Brig.-Gen. F. A. M. Browning, youngest general in the British army.

PSYCHOLOGISTS say people who draw weird hieroglyphics on pads during telephone conversations are generally worried about something. These probers of the human mind should range along the 52nd street bars and watch the bar-dawdlers for a few hours.

There is a frequent guest at Leon & Eddie's who sits at the bar hours on end beating out tunes with a spoon. I have seen him there at intervals of weeks or months for the last several years, and the routine never varies.

Another frequent imbiber, though I have never known him to be intoxicated, sits for hours in Twenty-One ripping paper matches apart and piling them into little rows like cordwood. He does it every night of his life. Now when he comes in, the waiters gravely place a dozen or so folders of matches before him.

KEY TO VICTORY

Fear War May Drag for Years

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — War sentiment here is at its lowest ebb since Dunkirk. Not that there is any thought of final conquest by Germany. The almost unanimous opinion is that Germany will be defeated in the end. In fact, where for months there was almost a general opinion among military experts that the Nazis would be able to overrun Britain within a month or six weeks after the invasion attempt started, the view now is that chances are considerably better than even that the invasion attempt will fail.

Putting all this together does not make sense. It would seem that there ought to be more optimism now than there was when most experts were so hopeless about Britain. But it is an accurate picture of the impression here, just the same.

THERE is another curious angle. When Italy moved against Greece the general opinion here was that it was a question of time—that eventually, no matter how valiant the efforts of the Greek army might be—the little country would be overrun. We are just beginning to understand now what was the matter with Italy, both in Africa and Albania. So at the time of Italy's first blow against Greece we were still overestimating the Italians. Possibly the latter because some of their crack regiments wear pompons on their sandals.

But even after the Greeks showed their quality, few here had any hope that Greece could hold out eventually.

"As soon as the Germans get at them it will be a different story," experts were saying.

SO WHY, it might be asked, is the optimism so low here now, when it is apparent that the Germans will be able to do what everybody was so confidently predicting?

Perhaps because that feeling of pessimism, which foresaw what it now happening to the Greeks at the hands of the Germans, was BEFORE the Yugoslavian episode. Events in that country first filled Washington with pessimism, then with optimism, and finally with pessimism again.

The first wave of pessimism was when the Yugoslav government signed the agreement with Germany at Vienna permitting transport of sealed trains of supplies and wounded through Yugoslavia. The optimism came when the revolution threw the pro-Germans out of power and showed Yugoslavia would fight.

Then all the optimism drained away when it was seen how ineffectually they fought.

Adding to this depression was the double fear that the army of the Nile, which had thrilled this country with its victories over the Italians in Africa, seemed in danger of having been reduced too sharply by sending troops to Greece, while the Italians in Africa were reinforced by Germans who really constituted a fighting force. Meanwhile the danger of another Dunkirk for the British army in Greece loomed.

So, while there is still confidence that the invasion threat against Britain will be met, and that Germany will eventually be defeated, it looks to Washington observers now as though the war will drag out for years. Hence the pessimism.

Listen World!

Creatures of Conflict

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE BEEN READING a fine, young book, Joyce Homer's "Death Watch in China." It was written during her days of wandering duty in the land of the lotus, and it is filled with the simple, ruthless words of a fresh spirit who has seen and dared to tell the stark truth.

Contrary to the ways of most youngsters, Joyce Homer puts on no frills. Here are China and Japan, as she knows and loved them both, wrapped in mortal combat. And all the rest of us, whether we realize it or not, wrapped right with them. For the fever that has flamed into the "China Incident" burns in the heart of all this modern world—and the immemorial lassitude and stupidity, which we all have permitted, stretch beside them for the burning. We—whatever our blood—are the victims of our own indulgence. And until we realize this, we are in for a terrible beating.

For it matters not how kind we are, or how charming, or how efficient, or how law-abiding, we've come to the day of reckoning. Unless we can walk with life and face the reality of our day, we are doomed.

Here, in young Joyce Homer's book, is the story of that doom. . . . China's dreaming . . . China's drifting . . . China's agony . . . and then the slow emergence of her salvation. And here, though you hate to admit it, is the story of America as well. What a might o'misery we'd save ourselves if we'd recognize and face the fact!

China was not a realistic nation. It loved to lounge and laugh, drink fragrant tea and watch the plum blossoms flutter to the ground. It did not, would not, see that the day had come for much sterner action. Even while the thunder mounted the horizon and rolled over the plain, China would not see, only when the rainstorm turned into flaming shrapnel, to destroy man and woman and unborn babes, would China see. But by that time it was almost too late.

"We are creatures of conflict," says Bishop Chen in Joyce Homer's book. "Our past has deserted us. It was not good enough. We have only our present—and sometimes the present deserts us too."

Creatures of conflict . . . bewildered dreamers who have drifted too long, and who cannot realize the bristling challenge of grim reality which surrounds them. That was China. That is America. Thousands, millions of us, still dreaming . . . thinking in terms of 1905 or 1925. Hoping, waiting for "the good old days to come back."

But they won't come back. The times have changed, as they have always changed. Changed to fit a new and grimmer mould. And we must change with them, or be swept away just as those countless larger, fiercer brutes, who could not adapt themselves, were swept away when the great ice came crawling down.

"WE ARE CREATURES OF CONFLICT." We are heirs to all the blunders of the human race; responsible for all its accumulated injustice and misery. It will not help us to dream of happier times. We must face these times as they are. It is not a matter of politics. It is a matter of life. The question is, "CAN OR CANNOT WE FACE LIFE AS IS?" If we can't, then it's time for the lilies.

Timely Editorial

Lower Draft Age Planned.

Selective service officials reportedly are considering plans for limiting compulsory military training after a year or so to men between the ages of 21-25. The present age limits are 21-35.

The change would be preparatory to putting selective service on a permanent peace basis, when, it is said, the training ages should be dropped to 18-21. That has been the European practice and has the obvious advantage of getting a youth's military training behind him before his adult career and responsibilities normally would begin.

"Officials" are quoted as explaining that, even though the United States manages to remain at peace, the necessity will continue in the post-war years of maintaining a large, trained potential army. That would seem to depend, in truth, on the outcome of the war in Europe.—Detroit News.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Southern Miners Seek Equality, Demand Same Scale as In North

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

NOT FAR from the spot in the Cumberland mountain where Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky come together are the communities of Harlan and Millesboro, Ky., focal points in one of the nation's richest bituminous coal fields. Their residents nearly all have been associated, one way or another, with coal production. Labor strife has been common, sometimes very bitter. Labor difficulty has often produced a shooting.

Tuesday, the guns of bloody southeastern Kentucky spoke again. Four men fell dead on a lonely mountain road not far from Middlesboro, the president and vice president of a coal mine, a miner and a patrolman. The outburst was the third of the month in the area, bringing to nine the number slain in disputes arising from a general stoppage of work in all Appalachian fields.

Northern Operators Agree.

Six hundred miles away—in New York—were seated negotiators bent on reaching an agreement which might have averted the slayings. These men were arrayed in three camps—the CIO United Mine Workers Union, operators of northern Appalachian mines and operators of southern mines.

Between two of the groups—the union and northern operators—accord was near. Reportedly a $7-a-day wage scale had been agreed on, paving the way to reopening mines in eight states.

Adamant in refusal to pay $7 were mine owners from four southern states who, in meeting the scale, would be forced to raise wages $1.40 a day compared to $1 in the north.

Steel production in the Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cleveland districts was curtailed because of the tie-up.

Steel Workers Get Their Raise.

Another big CIO union, the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, met with greater success meanwhile in ironing out its difficulties.

From "Big Steel"—The U. S. Steel Corp.—its members received the 10-cent-an-hour pay boost fore-shadowed a week earlier when Ernest T. Weir gave National Steel Corp. workers of "Little Steel" a similar raise.

After "Big Steel" came Bethlehem, No. 2 producer. Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and other big mills followed suit.

Ford: Back To Work.

Back to work went Ford Motor company employes, their 10-day strike ended with acceptance of a compromise agreement advanced by Michigan's governor, Murray D. Van Wagoner. As the men returned to work on $155,000,000 in defense contracts the governor proclaimed the truce "an historic step in establishing industrial peace."

In Washington, OPM Director William Knudsen denounced strikes called to take advantage of the defense situation as "criminal."

At Home

Ships Can Sail to Suez.

Senators and representatives returning to Washington from Easter vacations last Monday found themselves faced by a brand new development: President Roosevelt had removed the Red Sea and Gulf of Aden from the list of waters closed to American shipping under the neutrality act.

What protection, they asked promptly, might be given U. S. cargo vessels in the event they were attacked while delivering British war supplies to Red Sea ports, almost at the door of the Balkan and African battlefields.

The answer was not long in coming.

American merchant ships carrying war supplies through the Red Sea would have armed protection, the president indicated. He did not elaborate.

On Latin America's Future.

It was 51 years ago Monday that men from the Americas got together for their first international conference. As Pan American Day approached this year two conspicuous North American friends of Latin America offered these opinions of Latin America's future:

Vice-President Henry Wallace saw Latin America facing in the next 50 years a period of industrial expansion comparable to that of the U. S. from 1860 to 1910.

Nelson Rockefeller, U. S. coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics, warned that "If our neighbors do not get such products as steel, machines and agricultural equipment, there will follow in order drastic economic contraction, social unrest and eventually political upheaval."

Appointment at Ossining.

The escape alarm of Warden Lewis E. Lawes' Sing Sing prison wailed for the first time in eight years. Three long-term prisoners escaped from the infirmary with smuggled guns after killing a guard and causing fatal shock to an inmate with a weak heart.

Outside they allegedly had a rendezvous with friends who were supposed to be waiting with an escape car. The confessed aides had gone into a tavern for a "couple of drinks," however, so the fleeing inmates had to take an unplanned course. In a chance meeting with a cruising Ossining police patrol car, one convict and a policeman were killed. The other two escapees were captured across the Hudson river.

Abroad

Friendly Enemies.

When Japan's Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka stopped off in Moscow last week-end on his way home from Berlin and Rome it appeared at first to be a courtesy call. Relations between Japan and Russia had been taut for a quarter century despite recent Nipponese efforts for an understanding.

On Sunday it was revealed that Josef Stalin (in a congenial mood) and Matsuoka had reached an agreement on a neutrality pact which pledged each nation to maintain friendly relations, and to remain neutral in the event the other is made "the object of hostilities on the part of one or several third powers."

"Worst" Bombing.

In the Battle for Britain, the RAF smashed at Germany's naval center at Kiel and kept trying to cripple the German raiding battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau tied up at the French naval base of Brest. Meanwhile German air raiders tried to pulverize the English city of Bristol.

London received its worst pounding of the war when German fliers dropped 100,000 incendiary and high explosive bombs on the city. Lord Stamp, noted economist, was killed.

People

Hopkins In Key Spot.

President Roosevelt's closest adviser, many Americans have good reason to believe, is the frail, frank ex-social worker, Harry Hopkins. His residence is the White House. He has served as work relief director and Secretary of Commerce. When the president wanted someone to be his eyes and ears in Great Britain, he sent Hopkins. So it was with scant surprise that America greeted the announcement Tuesday that Hopkins would "supervise" the vast lend-lease program.

Topsy-Turvy Diplomacy.

In acquiring the right to establish bases on Greenland the U. S. dealt with the Danish minister, Henrik de Kauffmann.

The deal brought:

(1) Comment by authorized German sources that it was "illegal"; (2) de Kauffman's recall by Denmark; (3) a Danish foreign office declaration that the agreement was invalid; (4) announcement by the United States it would continue to recognize the minister and disregard his recall; (5) announcement by de Kauffmann that he too would disregard the recall order; (6) an order from Copenhagen formally firing him.

Batter Up!

Franklin D. Roosevelt threw out the first ball, southpaw Marius Russo of New York handcuffed the Washington Senators with three hits, and the Yankees won major league baseball's inaugural in the national capital 3-0. Next day, with the best mid-April weather in years, seven of eight American and National league scheduled games were played before 197,839 fans.

Science

Control of "Blood Cancer."

Acute leukemia, or "blood cancer," has invariably been fatal in about two months. Imperfect white blood cells formed in the marrow of bones pour into the blood stream and cause quick death. The first remedy to control the cells and prolong human life has been made by Dr. Shields Warren of Boston. He kills imperfect cells by shooting radioactive phosphorus, an artificial form of radium, into the marrow.

Another Discovery.

Aged Dr. George W. Carver, the famed Negro scientist of Tuskegee Institute, has filled a museum with his discoveries cooked up from common Southern products. His latest finding is a powerful liquid astringent to treat pyorrhea. He developed it from persimmon, which grows wild in profusion in the South.

Convicted: Joseph M. Schenck, movie executive, of income tax evasion in 1935 and 1936.

Announced: By Wendell Willkie, that the law firm of Miller, Owen, Otis & Bailly has become Willkie, Owens, Otis & Bailly.

Given Up: A $4,000-a-month job for a $21-a-month job, by William McChesney Martin, 34-year-old president of the New York Stock Exchange. He went into the army under the Selective Service Act.

This Is Ohio

THE MAN who delivered the eulogy at the burial of President Lincoln was an Ohio-born man, Bishop Matthew Simpson of Cadiz.

The day after Lincoln's second inauguration he preached a notable sermon in the house of representatives. His patriotism was deep and sincere and during the Civil war he was a tower of strength for the Union cause. Both his knowledge and his oratorical powers were employed in behalf of the Union.

Bishop Simpson was the son of James Simpson of Cadiz, who had been one of the town's first settlers. He had little schooling but, naturally inclined to books, mastered the ordinary school subjects. Reared under strong Methodist influences he had become active in religious work and was licensed to preach. He was elected bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1852.

One-Minute Test.

1. Who was Will M. Carleton?
2. Who said, "Let us have faith that right makes might"?
3. What is the origin of the term frogs as applied to Frenchmen?

Words of Wisdom.

There is no death! What seems so is transition; this life of mortal breath is but a suburb of the life elysian, whose portal we call death.—Longfellow.

Hints on Etiquette.

Don't start an argument unless you can keep your temper. Heated arguments may break up the nicest party and are very unfair to your hostess and the peaceful guests. They are very bad manners, too.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. An American poet of the people, best known for his poem, "Over the Hill to the Poor House."
2. Abraham Lincoln in a speech made at Cooper Union in 1860.
3. In the early history of Paris the streets were so quaggy that the French court in derision called the inhabitants frogs.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

This is America.

To every man his chance to live,
To work and go his way
Unhindered in his search for what
Is his, for what he may

Discover for himself. This is
His birthright in this land.
Here he can know this marvel, here
Today he can command

His soul, his time, do with it as
He wills. May this be so
In coming days as now, the years
Ahead his freedom know.

The 202 business firms in Holmes county did a credit business amounting to $1,200,000 during 1939, E. L. Carter, assistant manager of the Cleveland Retail Credit company declared at a recent meeting of the Holmes County Credit Association held at the Methodist church.

Carter dealt with the credit business from the several angles and stressed the importance of a definite and uniform credit policy for the local association to adopt. He outlined the importance the credit bureau play both to the retailer and the consumer in the business of the community and stated that the presence of a credit bureau in a community helps to make better citizens.

He complimented members of the Holmes county association on the progress made in the setup of the bureau which is a little more than a month old. They already have 42 members and Carter pointed out that this number of members is a fine beginning and points toward success of a growing credit bureau in this county.

'Raise' Families, Aid City's Newcomers

Visiting Nurses help in "bringing up" entire families if they remain in service as long as some of the nurses of the local organiaztion. Mrs. Dorothy Garrison Bell, youngest of the local nurses, is shown in the top picture as she feeds two-month-old twins while their three-year-old twin sister and brother watch the process. The older twins have also had the attention of the nurses from the time they were born. Helping young women find homes in the city, assisting them to obtain employment or adjust to new positions is one of the valuable services extended by the Y. W. C. A. In the picture below a newcomer, just arrived with her luggage, is being interviewed by Miss Margaret West, executive secretary.

LODGING, PERSONAL GUIDANCE SERVICE PROVIDED BY Y. W. C. A.

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles describing little known activities of agencies participating in the Mansfield Community Fund, which will hold its annual drive opening April 28.)

So long has an activities program been associated with the Y. W. C. A. that another valuable phase of the work goes by almost unnoticed.

That is the service extended to the girl and woman who rings the doorbell late at night in the hope of becoming either a permanent or transient guest and receiving guidance.

No one is ever turned away even though their finances are inadequate for lodging. Emergency space can usually be provided in the event guest rooms are filled. Then too, the Y. W. maintains a service whereby local homes and organizations furnish accommodations when they are not available at the "Y."

Twenty-four hour service is maintained by the institution so that women and girls seeking assistance in locating in the city or in need of other counsel may be aided at whatever time they appear, Miss Margaret West, executive secretary, said.

Usually they bring problems that require personal guidance. It may be in connection with search for employment or adapting themselves to a new position. Domestic difficulties may also confront them.

In all cases where personal guidance is required the Y. W. C. A. "follows through," according to Miss West, until the adjustments are made and the life of the individual is restored to normalcy.

An employment bureau is maintained by the organization which in the past year placed 262 girls in permanent and temporary positions.

Like the Y. M. C. A. the Y. W. is continuously in demand for organization activities. Recreational facilities are offered to all groups, both white and colored.

Center for Girl Reserve and Blue Tri activities the cheerful living rooms provide place for Hi-Y and Girl Reserve dances and furnishes setting for newcomers' parties that is a special feature of Y. W. C. A. hospitality.

Room rentals and small membership fees augmented the budget provided by the Community Fund which this year has allocated $6,950 to the organization. Cost of operations last year totalled $9,012.65.

Visiting Nurses Aid Aged, Mentally Ill

One of the least known activities of the Visiting Nurses Association is the placing of the aged sick or mentally ill in homes where they will receive proper care.

Hospitals, convalescent homes and numerous other institutions usually do not accept mental cases so the task of the Visiting Nurses in establishing this type of patients is frequently difficult.

The day of a Visiting Nurse is taken-up with calls on and for the patient, making the sick comfortable both physically and mentally, and improving all kinds of bedside aids that will lighten the tasks of those in charge between nursing visits.

Night calls are answered which means that round-the-clock service is given by the nursing staff of four under the supervision of Miss Mary Palmer. Mrs. Mary Hill McCarthy, who has been with the organization 23 years, Mrs. Dorothy Garrison Bell and Miss Faye Chamberlain are the other members of the organization. Miss Mary Hughes acts as secretary in the nursing office located in the city building.

Last year the Visiting Nurses made 6,024 calls and of this number, 3,975 were actual bedside nursing calls. Nine hundred and eleven visits were made to doctors and hospitals in behalf of the patients and 1,138 demonstration and instruction calls were made.

Cases are referred to the Visiting Nurses by physicians, friends of the sick or the family in need of care. If financially able to pay $1 a call for nursing care, the patient does so. Otherwise the service is free.

No charge is made for pre-natal instruction and cases of this kind form a sizable part of the nursing service. The charge of $5 is made for deliveries although the cost is actually $18.

Nurses use their own cars because it facilitates making calls and they receive a fee of $20 monthly for gas and upkeep.

First financed by the solicitations of Mansfield women who went from door to door, Visiting Nurses has been an agency of the community fund since 1920 when the fund started.

This year the agency will receive $7,200 from the fund towards maintaining operations which last year cost $9,086.04. The organization is governed by an executive board of 11 with Mrs. George Mead, president, and a general board of 37.

Chaplin's Greatest.

'The Great Dictator," begins a run at the Ohio today. It commands attention because of its star, Charles Chaplin; its theme, travesty on dictatorship and because of all Chaplin pictures, "The Great Dictator," was more extravagantly staged and cast than any of its predecessors. As the mousy little ghetto barber who is mistaken for a dictator Chaplin speaks for the first time in pictures. He not only speaks but screams and shouts as the neurotic dictator 'Hynkel." He is supported by Jack Oakie in the role of a rival dictator, Paulette Goddard, Billy Gilbert and Reginald Gardiner.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 20.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not a particularly promising one, since it holds portent of sudden and disrupting visitations difficult to analyze or forecast. Something in the nature of an upheaval, spading-up or precipitate or violent action may materialize. This may make expected inroads on the finances, call for unusual outlay of funds or perhaps involve litigation. Shun conflict and any sort of excess.

Those whose birthday it is should be prepared for a year of sudden and unpredictable events, with turbulence, disruption and upheaval affecting the emotional as well as business life. It may involve litigation, financial loss or other disagreeable and aggravating forms, but in all maintain balance, good judgment.

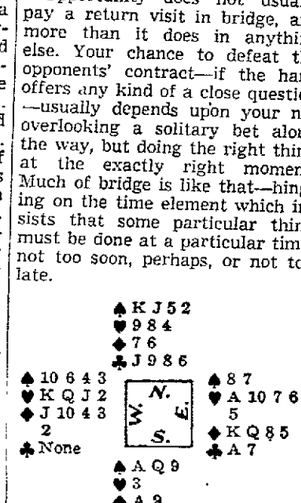
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT KNOCKS ONLY ONCE

Opportunity does not usually pay a return visit in bridge, any more than it does in anything else. Your chance to defeat the opponents' contract—if the hand offers any kind of a close question—usually depends upon your not overlooking a solitary bet along the way, but doing the right thing at the exactly right moment. Much of bridge is like that—hinging on the time element which insists that some particular thing must be done at a particular time, not too soon, perhaps, or not too late.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥
4 ♣	4 ♥	5 ♣	Dbl

When West led his heart K against this contract, opportunity banged upon Mr. East's door, but he refused to listen. He gave the high card signal of the heart 7 to urge his partner to repeat the suit, and that very moment his chance to beat the contract was gone. West naturally followed the instructions of the signal, which he reckoned was based on the fact that East had a four-card suit and counted on South to have another heart.

South gleefully ruffed the second heart and led his club K. After East took this, he led the diamond K. But it was too late. He was locking the stable after the departure of the horse. South's diamond A won that trick, and he dropped the last hostile club, then ran the spades, discarding the losing diamond on the last one.

East should have read that West had four hearts and South only a singleton. His play was to come up with the A over the K lead, then fire back his diamond K at once. That would have knocked out the diamond A. When he then won with his club A, he could have laid down the diamond Q to set the contract.

Your Week-End Lesson.

What is the most typical bidding situation which calls for the opening lead of a trump? Can you set up a hand which illustrates it, in which the declarer makes his contract against any other lead?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You sound very melodramatic," I told my husband to camouflage a swift onset of panic. For when I had obeyed his injunction, and followed his gaze to the end of the long railroad platform, my eyes had rested upon the tall figure of a young man, who, I was sure, was the gangster whom the state troopers had put to flight on our journey down with Carolyn from Weirhampton, and who, I was equally sure, had just telephoned her, insisting that she find out the number of my train compartment.

"That isn't answering my question," Dicky retorted. "I'll put it more concretely. Isn't that tall fellow at the end of the platform, our little Carolyn's gangster boy friend?"

"What is the injunction you're always giving me about not letting my imagination work overtime?" I countered clumsily, too panicky for smooth phrasing. "I suppose you mean that tall, collegiate-looking young man at the end of the platform. He doesn't look any more like a gangster than you do."

Probably "Seeing Things."

"So, that's your opinion," my husband drawled. "Well! you might be right, at that. I'm probably seeing things."

"Did Ronald get a chance to hear all of both conversations?" he began.

"Almost every word," I told him.

"And he relayed them to you, I take it."

"Yes, he did," I answered, bracing myself for his next question, the answer to which I knew I must phrase carefully, lest Dicky guess that I was purposely omitting something.

"I'm not delaying anything, and you know it," I said. "You haven't given me a chance to say anything yet. I was breathless all the way down from the speed you were going, and since we got here, you've been imagining you're seeing gangsters—"

"Where they ain't," Dicky finished with a grin. "Did her little goat get tethered too tightly? Well! it shan't happen again. Your husband will be most respectful. And now, will Your Majesty deign to inform the most humble of her subjects what transpired over the telephone?"

"Ronald said the man camouflaged his conversation with references to dates at Weirhampton, but made one thing very plain, he wanted to know the route she was taking back to Weirhampton."

Dicky Suspicious.

"The devil he did!" Dicky exploded. "What did she tell him?"

"That there was only one direct route, the one you came down, and that undoubtedly you would go back the same way."

"Undoubtedly we won't if we have to detour through Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Maine." Dicky commented viciously. "But she must have told him I was going to take her back."

"Yes, she said you and Ronald," I answered.

"That means quite a covey of his pals," Dicky commented. "The little—stop your ears while I get fitting epithets for her out of my system. No. I have a better scheme. I've got to get change, haven't anything but bills. I'll just toddle into the station, get a bill changed, and cuss Carolyn as I go."

She Loved a Spy + + + + + +

By Sylvia Taylor

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXX.

At last the true picture was unfolded to Joan. Paul had made their situation clear as Mulford's plane roared on. It seemed incredible that she could have been so blind. For almost two years she had worked for Arthur Mulford, regarding him as a kindly but rather tiresome employer. She had had no suspicions that his importer's shop was a blind, or that the letters she typed day after day were code messages concerning the subversive activities of a spy ring. She had wondered at her sudden dismissal but even then she had not connected it with the want ad she answered for Karl Miller's secretary. How completely she had fallen into their trap! And as Paul had said, if she had not fallen in love with Karl she probably would not know the truth even now.

What a fool Paul must have thought her, watching her through those weeks when she had happily boasted that Karl was going to marry her. How carelessly she had treated Paul's words of warning, and Sybil's. Sybil! Her sister's name struck fear into her heart. Paul had told her that when they arrived at the end of their journey he hoped to find Sybil. If they would only find her alive! And what about Peter?

It was night when the plane landed and forewarned by Paul, Joan was not surprised to see Arthur Mulford confronting them with a gun and saying, "All right now, keep your hands up."

Silently they filed out of the plane and at Mulford's command entered a waiting automobile, followed by the bewildered Thomas.

"What's it all about, Mr. O'Malley?" he begged. "Where are we?"

"Another of Karl's tricks," Paul explained in an undertone. "I think we're somewhere in New Mexico or possibly Arizona."

The moonlit night showed them little as they drove along the country road. Barren waste land stretched on all sides.

"You mean this guy is one of Karl's men?" Thomas whispered.

"Just Karl's boss," Paul said wryly.

Thomas, for once, was stunned into silence.

In a short time they arrived at a ranch house. It was the first dwelling of any kind they had seen since landing. Behind the large house was a smaller one and into this Paul, Joan and Thomas were led. The house was modern though crudely finished. There was a fireplace and electric lighting. Several rooms led into the living room but none of the three was inclined to venture from the fire.

"Well," Thomas said. "I guess this is all my fault. I thought Mulford was on the level. I didn't know he was connected with Karl. Honestly."

"We know that, Thomas. It's all right. It had to be this way. I've suspected for some time that Mulford was the chief of this outfit."

Joan sat down in an old wicker rocker and drew it closer to the blaze. "And now what do we do?"

"This ranch is a clearing house. Stolen plans that are not taken from San Francisco by boat are flown here and from here to Mexico where they are picked up off the coast by fishing boats. Mulford's gang probably have a powerful radio station in that other house, and I'd be surprised if there isn't a printing press concealed somewhere."

Thomas rubbed his hands together nervously. "But why did they want us to come here? Why would they have bothered?"

"That," Paul admitted, "remains to be seen."

"They must think they have some use for us," Joan argued, "or they wouldn't have gone to so much trouble."

The wind whistled outside. The silence of the night held the peculiar loneliness that belongs to the desert.

Joan was so deep in her own thought that the sound of footsteps startled her and she leaped from her place by the fire.

* * *

The door opened to admit Karl Miller. His arm was in sling. "You didn't quite finish me," he said smoothly. "Your aim is really very bad."

"What a pity," Paul murmured, while Thomas stared as though he had seen a ghost.

Karl turned his cold blue eyes upon Paul. "You have caused us a great deal of trouble, Mr. O'Malley. I believe the time has come now for you to be of use to us."

Paul had risen and the two men stood facing each other.

Karl said coldly, "Again I offer you the chance to come in with us. You could be a valuable asset."

Silent contempt was written on Paul's face.

"You refuse?"

"What do you think?"

"I don't think you would prefer to suffer the consequences," Karl said, smiling.

"I told you once before that I am not afraid to die."

With the greatest effort, Joan controlled herself. She knew that Paul was doing it the only way he could. The right way.

Instantly Karl noticed her agitation. "Ah, yes, Joan, I was about to speak to you."

"Leave her out of this," Paul commanded.

"How can I when you refuse to cooperate?"

"Meaning just exactly what?"

"Meannig," Karl said, "that if you refuse to give us your services, Joan will have to pay for it."

* * *

He walked over and took her arm, twisting it until she cried out with pain. Paul took a step forward but Arthur Mulford, who had been watching from the door, leaped forward with a gun in his hand.

"You see," Karl continued, "you really have no choice in the matter. If you refuse, life is going to be most unpleasant for Joan."

Although Karl still held her arm, which throbbed with pain, Joan cried, "Don't pay any attention to him, Paul. I'm not afraid."

Karl said, "Perhaps you are not afraid for yourself but there is still your sister to consider.

"Sybil! Where is she?"

"At the moment, she is safe. If you can persuade Paul to see this situation my way, she will continue to be safe. If not . . ." He shrugged.

"Very clever," Paul muttered.

Karl looked at O'Malley and smiled. "I believe you will find that you and your government are playing a losing game. Of course, Mr. O'Malley, in our country a man does not let sentimentality interfere with his job. It is unfortunate that you are not constituted the same way—unfortunate for you, and extremely lucky for us. I am sure that, being so fond of Joan, you would rather betray your country than permit her to suffer."

He exchanged glances with Mulford, and they both left the house.

"I told you!" Thomas cried. "They're devils!"

"If I can stall them off for a few days . . ." Paul was saying in a low guarded tone.

"What are you going to do?" Joan pleaded. "He's got Sybil somewhere. I can't bear to have anything happen to her!"

"How do you think I feel?" Paul answered. His face was grim.

"Oh, darling, don't blame yourself," Joan comforted, taking his hand. "We'll think of some way out."

"Karl's clever." Thomas reminded them. "You can't get away from him. Not for long. He always wins in the end."

"But he can't go on like this," Joan insisted. "As Paul has told us, even Karl must make a mistake sooner or later."

"Why don't you do it Karl's way, Mr. O'Malley?" Thomas urged. "After all, what else can you do?"

For a moment Paul looked as though he would strike him and then, sinking into a chair, he groaned. "There are some things you don't understand."

"I understand!" Joan cried. "You mustn't consider me, Paul. You must do what you feel is right. I became involved with Karl through my own volition. It was no fault of yours. And I don't want you to feel responsible."

"But I love you," Paul said quietly. "You do believe that, don't you."

"Of course I do, darling."

Thomas turned to one of the bedrooms so that they were alone now.

"I didn't expect Karl to arrive so soon," Paul said. "I've got to play for more time. If I can do that without making Mulford suspicious, my plans may come out all right."

Dr. Jeannette Nichols of Swarthmore, Pa., is collecting material for a book on John Sherman, Mansfield's famous author of the Sherman anti-trust act, and secretary of the treasury under President Hayes.

Being that interested in Sherman, she was astonished to learn this week that other things, like the opening of a baseball season, are considered more important to one aged Norwalk woman.

Dr. Nichols, who has been going through the files of Hayes Memorial Museum at Fremont, heard that Mrs. Emma Peters, 87, of Norwalk, had some information on Sherman that might be valuable.

* * *

So last Monday Dr. Nichols called Mrs. Peters by telephone and asked for an interview on Tuesday.

"You can have an interview today," was the reply, "but not on Tuesday. The baseball season opens Tuesday."

And Dick Behr, sports editor of the Fremont News Messenger, who tells the above story poses the question:

"What's a book, or a whole library full of 'em when the umpire shouts: 'Play Ball!'"

* * *

Two of the Tiffin ball players who were sold conditionally to Indianapolis last fall, are back with the Ohio State league club.

Lee Stuckman, Bucyrus boy, and Don Bayliss have been turned back to the Mud Hens after lasting out the training season with the Indians.

The Tiffin front office loses money, but the team gets a couple of ball players who should be more than welcome.

Marion Harding tracksters are entered in today's Mansfield Relays without a day of practice. But they don't seem to need much practice. They won a triangular meet from Shelby and Galion this week without a minute of previous training.

Marion's hopes are high for next football season, so Coach George Neimi postponed track drills until spring football has had its day.

And with the Galion-Shelby meet on the fire, he just rounded up a bunch of athletes and went out and won the thing.

* * *

Don't do that, George. If teams can win without coaching someone may get the idea that they can win without coaches.

Pending Sale Of Bees Reported

BOSTON—(AP)—The Globe says a controlling interest in the Boston Bees baseball club will be sold next week to a newly-formed syndicate consisting largely of men who have been identified with the game as "fans" rather than as "magnates."

* * *

Ford Frick, president of the National league, will arrive in Boston today, apparently for consultation in connection with the deal, the newspaper said.

* * *

The Globe added that Bob Quinn, Bees president, would remain as active head of the club with Casey Stengel, a member of the syndicate, as manager.

Buckeyes Lacking In Speed

Brown Needs Someone Who Can Travel.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Although Coach Paul Brown described the year's first regulation game as "normal and satisfactory," Ohio State university's 1941 football team faces plenty of problems.

* * *

"We are sadly lacking in speed and experience in vital spots,' Brown said following yesterday's contest between first and second stringers which the latter won by pushing over four touchdowns to the varsity's three.

"I was surprised that the offense was so far ahead of the defense," Brown said. "Generally, at this season, it's pretty hard to gain. Several of the boys forgot their defensive assignments, and that's why so much scoring was accomplished.

"They'll do better with more experience, and they'll get plenty of that. We will have regulation games each week of spring practice, and wind up May 10 with a big game in the stadium. By that time we should have a pretty fair idea of what's what."

The second team, or "whites," showed up well on offense with Paul Sarringhaus, Hamilton freshman, sparking the drive with long gains and a touchdown.

For the varsity, or "reds," two of the touchdowns came on passes and the other on an 18-yard run over tackle by the veteran Jack Graf.

* * *

The "white" lineup was: Veteran Pete Fox and Freshman Al Flor of Cleveland, ends; Capt. Jack Stephenson and Freshman Don Steinberg of Toledo, tackles; veterans Fritz Howard and Cliff Heffelfinger, guards; veteran Bill Vickroy, center; and George Lynn of Niles; Bill Durtschi of Galion, Sarringhaus and Bob Hecklinger of Toledo in the backfield.

Red Birds Chalk Second Victory

(By Associated Press)

Tom Sayles and Al Hodkey of Louisville gave the Kansas City Blues eight hits yesterday but won a 4 to 3 decision.

* * *

Columbus and Indianapolis matched Louisville's pace by winning their second straight games, too. The Red Birds shoved across three runs in the last of the seventh for a 9 to 6 victory over St. Paul, which trailed most of the contest.

* * *

Indianapolis defeated Milwaukee, 2 to 1, behind Glenn Fletcher's five-hit pitching.

Riding behind a 15-hit attack, Mickey Haefner hurled Minneapolis to a six-hit, 5 to 3, victory over Toledo.

COACHES DENISON.

GRANVILLE —(AP)— Sid Gillman, who has been assisting Football Coach Tom Rogers at Denison University for the past month, has been signed as Denison line coach for the coming season. He was a member of the Ohio State University staff which resigned with Coach Francis A. Schmidt, last December.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—A hockey hall of fame may be next. Corcoran, hustling P. G. A. tournament manager, who helped put the golf hall of fame across, is booming it and he's hard to stop once he gets under way. . . . PICTURE UPSIDE DOWN

O, the Flatbush wolves are howling
And Durocher is a'growling,
And the great MacPhail is scowling—
Things have gone from bad to worse.

Out in front the Giants are loping,
In the cellar Brooklyn's moping,
When, according to the doping, (x)
It should be quite the reverse.

Which is why the cheerless Terry
Hasn't heard a single berry,
As they drink his health in sherry
And we sing his praise in verse.

(x) Up to yesterday.

HEARD AND SEEN

Things got so serious in Flatbush that Larry MacPhail skipped the Giant-Dodger final and went to Newark to see his Montreal farm hands play. . . . Today's sports quiz: What pitcher has been a member of the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals within the past six months, yet never wore the uniform of either club? Answer later. . . . TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Halsey Hall, Minneapolis Star-Journal: "All writers, printers and radio announcers in the league will please rise and stand at attention as Louisville players Wladyslaw Kaczynski and Alphonse Mazuriewicz walk by. . . . Answer to sports quiz: Tot Presnell. Brooklyn sold him to St. Louis in November. In December St. Louis sold him to the Reds. Come February and the champs shipped him to the Cubs where he still was last time we looked. . . . Harry Grayson, sports editor of a Cleveland newspaper syndicate, has been barred from Indian home games for the fourth straight season—too many slaps at Slapnicka—which gives him permanent possession of the doghouse.

SOPHOMORE FULLBACK STARS FOR BROWN

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Coach Paul Brown at Ohio State University today was expressed "pleasant surprise" at the play of his Buckeye gridders in an inter-squad game.

Brown expressed the most pleasure over the play of Bullback Bob Hecklinger, scintillating Toledo Waite ace, who banged over the goal for three touchdowns yesterday as the second team whipped the first eleven, 24-18.

EAST TECH SHOWS POWER IN RELAYS PRELIMINARY EVENTS

noon, he might equal Lane's 15-second flat. Or he might beat it.

Erie Academy High qualified two men in the hurdle event, too. They were Collins and Pettigrew. The other two to qualify were Goodrich of Dayton Stivers, and Fabian of Erie Strong-Vincent.

In the 100-yard dash, the best time was 10.2, by Carr of Mt. Lebanon, Pa., registered in a preliminary. They had to run the 100-yard dash preliminaries in 12 heats, by the way.

I hate to drag out that old cliche about a "riot of color" but it's as good as anything I could think up on the spur of the moment, and anyhow, that's what this place looks like.

There were about 1,000 in the stands for the early events, and between the bright colors worn by some of our young ladies, the pennants atop the stands at spaced intervals, the red and white hurdle standards, the white lane markings on the track, the green of the infield and the track suits of the athletes—well, riot of color isn't exaggerating.

Preliminaries in three field events—the javelin, discus and shot, were being staged on the football practice field west of the stadium. That was a pretty good idea, not only from a safety standpoint with so many around, but also gave a better look at the running events.

In the preliminaries here, too, were a couple of record-approaching performances.

Bill Craig, the one-man track team from Newark, got off the best discus throw of the day, a heave of 147 feet. The record is 152.

In the javelin, John Adair, Parkersburg, W. Va., flung the spear 178 feet 3 inches, the record is 182.

But the shot, javelin and discus finals will be staged where all can see, be assured.

Well, it's lunch time and I gotta get a hot dog, or something.

It looks like a great afternoon—if it doesn't rain.

YOUTH CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR

Cincinnati Youth Killed In Clothing Store Shaft.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Wedged accidentally between an elevator and the wall of a downtown clothing store, Leonard Becker, 17, son of the store proprietor, died yesterday. Authorities said death apparently was caused by strangulation.

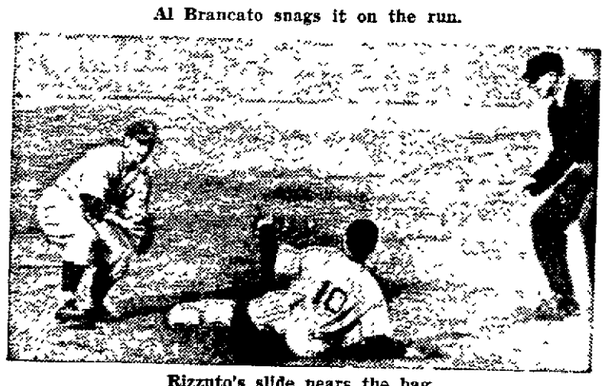
Police theorized that the youth had attempted to jump into a moving elevator and had grabbed the floor of the elevator when he missed the upper part. He was crushed as the elevator continued to ascend.

Okay, Is He Safe Or Out?

This bit of second base action took place in Yankee stadium during the series between the Yanks and the Athletics. Phil Rizzuto, Yank rookie, slides into the base as Al Brancato handles the defensive work. What do you think? Is he safe or out?

Here comes the ball—and Phil Rizzuto.

Al Brancato snags it on the run.



Rizzuto's slide nears the bag.

Brancato makes contact—or does he?

Feller Tries To Get Even

Takes on Detroit Tigers In Revenge Effort.

DETROIT —(AP)— Bob Feller has an old score to settle today.

He takes on the Detroit Tigers, not only trying to put the Indians and himself into the win column, but also to avenge a couple of beatings the Tigers gave him when they clinched the pennant in the final week of the 1940 campaign.

Jonny Gorsica, a young right hander who sparkled in the world series last year, is his mound opponent. It is Feller's second start of the season, following his opening defeat at the hands of the White Sox.

Two homers were among the six hits which the Tigers made at the expense of Jim Bagby yesterday in winning the opener, 4 to 2, before 42,164 fans in their hometown opener.

Lie Gehringer got the first one in the sixth inning, breaking a 1-to-1 tie, but it was Birdie Tebbetts, the red-headed catcher, who sewed up the game with his seventh-inning round-tripper. He lofted the ball into the lower left field seats, driving Pinky Higgins in ahead of him.

The Indians' first run was a homer by Ken Keltner in the sixth.

Derringer Gets Fireman Job

Time to Put Out Fire, Big Paul's Told.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—It's up to big Paul Derringer today to stop Pittsburgh and a growing mutter of "what's the matter with the Reds?"

* * *

Derringer, who won one and lost none against the Pirates last year, opposes Russell Lee Bauers whose 15 ball games last season found him credited with two losses and no victories.

Bucky Walters joined Derringer and Junior Thompson of the highly rated Cincinnati pitching staff in getting chased from the mound in his initial 1941 start yesterday as the Pirates, with a 4-1 victory, puts the Reds' loss string at four—more than any setback streak of last season.

Vincent Paul DiMaggio did the damage in the seventh with a long homer which followed a triple by Bob Elliott and a walk to Elbie Fletcher. Maurice Van Robays led off the seventh with a home run tying the game at 1-1. Dick West rapped a four-bagger in the fourth for the Reds.

Big Albert Maxwell Butcher went the entire route for the Pirates, while Fireman Joe Beggs pitched the eighth for the Reds.

Soldier Boy

HANK GREENBERG.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers' star slugger and outfielder, is pictured leaving the Harper hospital in Detroit where he was re-examined by selective service doctors who pronounced him physically fit. This puts him in 1-A classification, according to the Detroit draft board, subjecting him to army induction sometime in early May. Greenberg's draft status was recently in doubt when he was reported to have flat feet.

Hank's Lost to Tigers

Greenberg Reclassified, Called to Army In May.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just as intended, the army draft is striking both the mighty and the meek of baseball.

* * *

A selective service board in Detroit ended the confusion surrounding the status of Big Hank Greenberg yesterday, and knocked the Tigers out of the American league pennant picture, by classifying him definitely 1-A and announcing he would be inducted into the army about May 7.

Another draft board disclosed yesterday that Cecil Travis, star shortstop of the Washington Senators, had been classified 1-A and probably would be called next month at about the time Third Baseman Buddy Lewis of the same team is to be inducted. Earlier this week Outfielder Joe Marty of the Phillies was informed he would be summoned. The same team already has given up Hugh Mulcahy.

Greenberg's going means a drastic change in position for Detroit—possibly a drop into the second division.

In the National league the undefeated New York Giants are on top and the world champion Reds are on the bottom without a single victory. The Boston Red Sox are unbeaten leaders of the American league while five clubs are tied for second with an even split of their games to date.

The Reds were routed 4-1 by the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday in spite of the fact that Bucky Walters went swell for six innings.

* * *

The St. Louis Cardinals suffered their first defeat when the Chicago Cubs got rough with Clyde Shoun in the seventh inning on three extra base blows, the last a homer by Bill Nicholson, and won 6-4.

The Giants made peasoup of the Phillies 7-2, starting with a five-run third inning when Mel Ott homered with the bases loaded.

Brooklyn's bashful Dodgers, who hadn't won a game previously, had one given to them at Boston, where the Bees blew up with six errors and handed over an 11-6 decision.

The Red Sox stayed unbeaten with a nerve-tingling 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Home runs decided Detroit's 4-2 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

Washington revenged its opening day defeat by the New York Yankees by shelling Lefty Marius Russo for a dozen hits in four frames, and won out 7-4 on the eight-hit hurling of Southpaw Ken Chase.

* * *

Old Ted Lyons, usually a Sunday specialist, proved he could be just as effective on a week-day by leading the Chicago White Sox to a 6-3 verdict over the St. Louis Browns. He spread nine hits and kept his foe shutout until the seventh.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

The new 1941 Digest of Ohio Fishing Laws has arrived, and there's a copy awaiting you at Yuncker's store, free for the asking.

* * *

A number of good reports have been received on the fishing at the Charles Mill Waterways, during the past week. Several good bass catches were reported, and we've heard from a number of fishermen that the bluegills and crappies were hitting.

* * *

In addition to his family, the Brazilian toucan has to support a tremendous beak. But fortunately for him, it consists mainly of air cells and is not nearly as heavy as it looks.

* * *

Here's food for thought. Within the borders of the United States are more men skilled in the use of firearms than in any other nation in the world, despite the great armies maintained abroad. While other lands have restricted or hampered the use of guns, thus limiting the number of their marksmen, shooting as a major sport has long flourished in the United States. The right to bear arms is guaranteed by the Constitution to American citizens, and the millions of straight-shooting sportsmen constitute a valuable and a formidable second line of defense.

* * *

Bluegills frequently grow to a size which makes them scrappy customers on light fly tackle, and they fight just as well as black bass, ounce for ounce. Try bluegill fishing with a fly rod for real sport. Yuncker's carry a complete selection of fly rods that are priced as low as $2.95.

* * *

There are no snakes whatever in New Zealand, and their importation, even for zoological uses is strictly prohibited.

The highest highway in the United States is the fourteen mile roadway to the top of Mount Evans n Colorado, with a peak of 14,259 feet.

TENDENCY TO DECLINE STILL HOLDS IN MART

Boardrooms Follow News
G. M. Abandons Plans For New Models.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Declining trends persisted in today's early stock market proceedings although selling pressure again was notably lacking.

At a slow opening losers of fractions included Texas Corp., Kennecott, General Motors and Montgomery Ward. The weak steels of yesterday displayed a little resistance. Bethlehem was up a shade and U. S. Steel unchanged.

Pessimistic war bulletins, brokers said, remained as the principal buying handicap.

Of prime interest to boardrooms was the General Motors announcement that all plans for new models in the 1943 season had been abandoned in order to release tool making facilities for the national defense program.

Market analysts saw another recovery straw in the forecast of the bureau of agricultural economics that consumer demand for farm products would continue to expand during the remainder of 1941 under the stimulus of rising employment and expanded incomes.

NAZIS CAPTURE MT. OLYMPUS AS ALLIES RETREAT

London Press Warns Nation to Be Ready For Possible Defeat In Greece.

to report on developments in the Near East.

Nazis emphasized that the battle of Greece was a hard one and that the fight for control of the Mediterranean would be long and difficult.

In Albania, the Italian high command reported that its troops were advancing steadily into positions evacuated by the Greeks and that a flying column had struck into Yugoslavia.

The war in the air was less intense Friday night over Britain and Germany, but at sea the Nazis reported they had destroyed 19,000 tons of shipping around the British coast and damaged other vessels.

On the North African front, Axis air forces led by dive bombers renewed heavy attacks on the besieged British forces at Tobruk, where Anzac troops had been reported turning back repeated assaults.

Imperial Forces Reach Head of Persian Gulf

LONDON—(AP)—Strong British imperial forces have arrived in Basra, at the head of the Persian gulf, to "open lines of communication through Iraq," it was announced here officially today.

The announcement said that the "new Iraq administration, true to the initial assurances given by Syid Rashid Ali Rl Gailani, (Iraq premier) are affording full facilities" and have sent a high officer to Basra to welcome the commanding British officer and to collaborate with him."

Authorized sources said the imperial troops had been given a "warm welcome" by the population at Basra, and that the cooperation of the Iraq government in making possible the execution of this new move had made a "favorable impression" here.

They added that the circumstances gave rise to the hope that "more normal relations between" Great Britain and Iraq might soon be established.

Greece Wrestles With Cabinet Crisis

ATHENS —(AP)— Greece wrestled today with a cabinet crisis caused by the unexpected death of Premier Alexandros Korizis while her army, aided by British imperial forces, fought fiercely to stem a great German offensive threatening the very life of the nation.

Greek spokesmen admitted that the outlook was far from bright, though dispatches from the front last night said the allied defenders were holding their own.

Heavy German attacks along the entire British-Greek defense line failed to penetrate at a single point, British army headquarters in Athens asserted today.

"Despite all efforts, our front has nowhere been penetrated and our flanks nowhere turned," a communique said.

(The German high command reported today that Larisa, Greek city 40 miles south of Mount Olympus, where British troops had been reported fighting, had been taken and that the Swastika had been hoisted on Mount Olympus.)

There were reports that King George II was planning formation of a military government to meet the crisis precipitated by the death of the Premier, who succeeded the late Gen. John Metaxas following the latter's death last Jan. 29.

It was understood the king himself had assumed wartime control of the government as head of the council of ministers.

(Informed sources said the monarch earlier had asked Kostas Kotzias, former military governor of Athens, to form a cabinet, but that he had failed to do so.

Kotzias last night appealed to the people in a radio address to stand firm as an example to their fighting men and paid tribute to British imperial forces "fighting on our soil at the side of our troops."

City Workers Discover Manhole In Touby's Run Puts Storm Waters In Lines.

bol representing the presence of the manhole has been placed on the chart in pencil but no date for its construction accompanied the record.

The mayor said that LeMunyon had reported the manhole gradually filling with sand and gravel accumulated from the creek bed. No extensive sewer cleaning campaign had been undertaken by the city until this year when two special machines were purchased for the task. LeMunyon also reported that other manholes and sewers in the vicinity of the manhole in the creek were affected by its action.

Statler said that the manhole would be eliminated as soon as possible. He said that it probably had been constructed about 15 years ago and had been covered by the bridge leading to the company office.

GOVERNOR GIVES TWO PARDONS

Former OSR Inmates Receive Bricker Clemency.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A machinist threatened with loss of his defense industry job and two men unable to obtain citizenship papers because of Ohio criminal records were pardoned today by Gov. John W. Bricker.

The machinist was Maurice Holsinger, now employed at Ridgely, Md., who served more than two years in Mansfield reformatory under a Cuyahoga county conviction for carrying concealed weapons.

To avert deportation to Germany, a clean bill was granted to Vincent Fred Schmaizer, who under the alias of Fred Keider was paroled from Mansfield in 1928 after a year of imprisonment for a Crawford county burglary. His subsequent arrest through federal bureau of investigation agents followed an unauthorized Canadian honeymoon visit.

the use of concrete pipe for sewers other than storm sewers. The journal did not contain the clause.

Jameson sought to insert an amendment affecting concrete pipe but several members branded it as a discrimination and it was rejected. After a half-hour debate action on the measure was postponed.

Yesterday the bill was recommitted to the health committee over Jameson's protest and it was then that he introduced the investigation resolution, which was referred to the rules committee.

Chairman H. T. Phillips of the health committee said that absence of the amendments from the journal was "simply a mistake and I am not charging any wrongdoing."
